Our System Work

- Mutual stands for a percent allocation management module. It is a software application generally used for pairing client funds with a special discretionary account service provided by foreign exchange brokers. The EA trading activity results - including profits, losses and trades - are compounded among central asset accounts accordingly to the ratio of investment on an account. As the currency dealing and other types of arbitrage operations attain profit-making capacity within very straitened margins, this type of management enables more currency to be engaged in trading while the risk is distributed usually between investors.
- Best returns on their investment.
